Ritual is not the main thing

By Rabbi E. Geffen, 32°

There are many Freemasons who know nothing about the morality of Freemasonry, or what their duties are, for the reason that they are only interested in the ritual. The ritual is only a small part of Freemasonry; steps should be taken to call the attention of the craftsman to the morality of the Craft, and to what their duties as good and true Freemasons are, and the nature and extent of their obligations.

The ritual is undoubtedly not to be neglected, inasmuch as it is the medium through which we acquire our lessons of symbolism, by translating the mystical to real conduct of life. The ritual is also important, because by its means we separate ourselves from the rest of the world, and obtain the means of mutual recognition.

But it is, after all, the weakest part of Freemasonry.

The ritual alone will no more make a true Freemason than the manual exercise will make a true soldier.

The moral and intellectual teachings of the Order, its intention as a great philosophical institution, occupied in the search after Divine Truth, should always engage the attention of the masonic student, and form a prominent part of his studies.

We unfortunately, know too many Freemasons who are completely ignorant of the history, the nature, the design and the true symbolism of the Order, as if they had never entered within its portals, regardless that they are familiar with the exact phraseology of the ritual.

Freemasonry has its science and its literature, and to these the attention of the masonic student should be directed. The ritual is its alphabet. A knowledge of it is, therefore, it is true, necessary to a full comprehension of its language. But he who has gone no further than the alphabet,

On behalf of the Masonic Foundation of BC & Yukon, MW Bro. G. Murray Webster recently received a plaque from Mary-Ellen Canning of Saint Paul's Hospital for their "Lights of Hope".

however competent he may be to instruct others in the same rudiments, can hardly discharge the duty of a teacher of the science.

Such ritualists, who do not know the history and morality of our Order, are like some ignorant servitor in a public library, who can readily point out the shelf or spot occupied by every book, and even give from memory a correct rendition of its title-page, and yet who knows no more concerning the intellectual treasures contained within its locked leaves than the binder who put them together.

It is time that Freemasons should come to the conclusion and realize that something more than a mere knowledge of the words of a ritual are necessary to make a "bright" Freemason or a competent teacher in Freemasonry.

Masonic education at its best. Open for your convenience on second and fourth Friday evenings; 5:00 'til 10:00 pm.

Junior Grand Warden-elect RW Bro Ian J. Bowman

Born in Scotland in 1951, I began my career in electrical engineering with the National Coal Board. My wife and I immigrated to BC with our two young children in 1979 and now enjoy four grandchildren. I was initiated and raised in Redwood Lodge 193 in Edmonton before returning to BC in 1987.

I affiliated with Langley Lodge in 1988, became WM in 1993-94 & 94-95. Served as District education officer and appointed DDGM of District 23 in 1997.

As president and owner of SOFTAC Systems and past president of the Western Canadian Export Association I am no stranger to business concepts and the challenges of making sound business decisions. Exposure to both government and private business sectors has broadened my awareness of what it takes to be part of and lead a successful team.

I believe in the solid principles of the fraternity and that the world needs Freemasonry more today than it ever did. I believe the foundation laid down by the current Grand Line officers will carry us forward with vision into the future.

I was inspired to seek election as Junior Grand Warden and become part of a team that will move forward recognizing change as positive growth for the benefit of the Craft.

It is my goal to provide leadership and build on the success of those who have gone before me. ■

Lessons of a lifetime

By Jessica Burch

They came to my house, three poised, well-dressed young women. I was 11 years old, and the 3 to 5 year age gap between me and these elegant creatures seemed insurmountable. I was so intimidated that I hid at the top of the stairs, refusing to do more than periodically peer around the corner, even though the young ladies were technically my guests. Eventually, my parents lured me down with the promise that everyone present could have a can of pop (a rare treat). My shyness defused, I finally got up the nerve to speak to them.

A few months later, I was giving a speech from memory in front of six hundred people. A year or so after that, I was planning and hosting multiple large scale events. By the age of 16, I was running business meetings in accordance with Robert's Rules of Order. What happened? I joined Job's Daughters. The three young women had come to tell me about this organization, and it was amazing how quickly I became one of them.

Job's Daughters is a young women's leadership organization connected to Freemasonry. Members develop social skills, self-confidence, and civic awareness. In an era where many Canadians struggle to remember all the words to 'O Canada', I grew up gaining insight into different cultures (learning multiple national anthems in the process). I'd look forward to the big annual provincial gatherings (called Grand Session – the occasion on which I'd made my aforementioned speech), at

My experience is not unique. Many young women share memories like mine and have found, as I have, that the skills and confidence gained during their time in Job's Daughters have continued to pay dividends years into the future.

Longevity

Bro. John A Walker, born 27 February 1865, joined Shuniah Lodge No. 287 in Port Arthur, Ontario, on 16 December 1889. Living his later years in Kelowna, by 1970 he had served 81 years in the Craft.

The longest serving member on record appears to be Bro. Cyrus E. Hill, initiated 23 March 1852 in Hampton Lodge, Massachusetts who died 83 years and nine days later.

Currently, our senior member is RW Bro. Donat R. McMahon of Burrard Lodge No. 50, born 20 October 1908 and initiated 16 May 1930. ■

1760 degree team

In 1717, the Premier Grand Lodge of England was formed. In 1751 a rival Grand Lodge was founded. Its members, believing that they practiced a purer form of Freemasonry called themselves the "Antients".

Seating for this Table Lodge event is limited to 40 brethren. Tickets are $35. Contact VW Bro. Peter Smith at msmith9@telus.net or 250-442-5769 for details.
